INTRODUCTION

As in Part I of the Inventory of Washington Minerals, the data in Part II are presented in two forms—maps and text. Here in Part II, however, the maps and the text are bound in two separate volumes, so that descriptive material and corresponding map may be studied together with the least possible inconvenience to the reader.

In the text (Volume 1) the properties are described under the headings of the various metals, which are arranged alphabetically. Properties about which some information is known but in which the kind of ore is not known are grouped under a separate heading following the metals. At the end of Volume 1 is a property index in which all properties are listed alphabetically.

The maps (Volume 2) are likewise arranged alphabetically by metals, with a separate map at the end for properties whose ores are not known. However, since some metals are found in only a few known occurrences in this state, some of the maps are combined to show the occurrences of several metals, thus putting some of the metals slightly out of place alphabetically in the map sequence. For example, one map shows occurrences of bismuth, cadmium, cerium, columbium, and tantalum—the latter two being mapped together because of their very close chemical relationship and the close association in nature. Bismuth, cadmium, and cerium are shown on the same map merely for printing economy. Cobalt and nickel are shown on a single map also because of their close chemical alliance and physical association. Printing economy dictated the combining of platinum, selenium, tellurium, and thorium on one map; tin and titanium on another; and uranium, vanadium, and zirconium on another. On the other hand, lode gold and placer gold deposits are described in separate sections in the text and are shown on separate maps to better differentiate the two types of deposits.

Most metallic-mineral properties have more than one metal in their ores, and as this inventory lists all known occurrences of all the metallics in the state, the names of most of the properties appear under several headings in the report, and the properties are shown on several maps. However, each property is described in only one place—under the heading which represents what is believed to be the most important constituent of the ore.

For example, the Holden mine in Chelan County is described under copper and is shown on the copper map. It is assigned a number (40) which follows the name in the copper section of the text and is adjacent to the symbol for the mine on the copper map. (On the copper map all properties which are described under the heading "Copper" in the text are shown by a cross "+", and all properties which have some copper, but in which other metals account for the principal values, are shown by a large dot "•". Most of the other maps use these symbols with the same meanings.) However, the Holden mine also produces zinc, gold, and silver, so it is shown on each of these maps, and the name appears in its proper alphabetical position under each of these headings in the text, but following the name in each of these sections is simply a notation "(see under copper)". The number (51) assigned to the Holden mine on the gold map and in the text under gold is not the same as that given the same property under any of the other headings where it may be found, but the number given each property on any given map is the same as the number given the same property in the corresponding section in the text.

Some of the occurrences described in the text do not have a map number and are not shown on any map, because their locations are too inexactly known.

To facilitate following a numbered symbol on a map (in Volume 2) to the description (in Volume 1) of the property represented by the symbol, a finding list (numerically arranged) relating number to property name is on the page facing each map.

The scale of the state maps is such that they can be regarded as index maps only. Locations of the properties are given as precisely as possible in the text, but because of the small map scale, the detail is not as great as it would be on larger scale maps. In order to show the location of all the occurrences in some areas it is necessary to allow a single symbol to represent several closely spaced properties. Even this device leaves some of the small-scale state maps so cluttered with symbols in some areas that there is insufficient room for the identifying numbers. Where this is true, special larger scale county maps are used. These are the maps for copper, gold, lead, silver, and zinc for Stevens County, and for lead and zinc for Pend Oreille County.
